

Share an open-source design system you want to utilize in your own designs

Now that you're familiar with how and why designers implement design systems, you can consider how design systems may impact your work. Research open-source design systems and share an example of a design system you like. Then, respond to the following questions:

What's something you like about the design system you chose?

What's one way that the design system you chose might impact the user's experience of an app or brand that used it?

What element or component from the design system you chose would you like to add to your own designs?
