

Ideas for networking

Forming connections through networking is an important skill in UX design.

For this discussion, share an experience you've had while networking.

Consider the following questions:

What did you include in your initial message?

Did you experience impostor syndrome?

Where did that conversation lead?