

Share difficult interview questions

Interviews can be intimidating, and the best approach to overcoming these fears is to prepare responses to potential questions interviewers may ask. However, interviewers like to challenge the candidate to “think on their feet” and can be known to ask unconventional questions during an interview. In the discussion forum, share a question you found interesting or challenging from a past interview and why. You can share from a personal or non-personal experience.