

1.

You learned about the types of entry level roles found in the UX field. You've also learned about common career paths for a UX designer. Now, take a moment to reflect on what you're looking for in a job. Address the following in your response:

What are your priorities?

What type of role are you most interested in?

List out all specific components or criteria of the types of jobs you're interested in—anything you can think of is great!