About badges

What is a badge? A badge is a visual representation of a verified credential you've earned. In this case, your credential is the Google UX Design Certificate! You'll get a badge upon completion of the program that you can share on platforms like LinkedIn to catch the attention of potential employers and other designers.

What are Credly and Acclaim? Acclaim is a badging platform that's part of Credly, a leading digital credential service provider. Acclaim provides badges so that you can easily share your achievements to online destinations like LinkedIn, and employers can instantly verify your skills.

How do I add my badges to my LinkedIn profile? Follow the steps in this Credly article ↗ to add your badge to your LinkedIn. You can also check out this YouTube video ↗ for further guidance.

About the Google badge

How do I claim my badge for completing the Google UX Design Certificate?

- Upon completion of this certificate program, you will receive an email that you have earned a badge. From the email, you can choose to claim the badge and opt in to share your information for the purposes of badge issuing. If you decide to claim the badge, Coursera will send a request to Acclaim to issue your badge. If you don't have an Acclaim account yet, you will be asked to create one before you can accept and view your badge.

- Please allow at least one week from your date of completion for the system to update. Make sure to check your spam folder, in case the email ends up there!

What if I completed the Google UX Design Certificate, but have not received an email invite to claim my badge? If you've waited a week since completing the certificate program and haven't received an email, please submit a request through the Acclaim Help Center ↗.

When will I receive my badge? Badges are sent out daily to learners who have completed all seven courses of this certificate program and opted in to receive the badge. Please allow at least one week from your date of completion for the system to update.

Now, show off all of your hard work to the world!
